SUN & THE CINEMA A MATCH MADE IN MOVIE HEAVEN!

People on the East Coast who want to escape frigid weather, and Southern Californians who crave a restful getaway, will all relish the balmy ambience of Palm Springs in January. If you're looking for a grand getaway from the winter blues, this is just the ticket!

Palm Springs has something for everyone under a clear canopy of sun and stars. The star-power at the Palm Springs International Film Festival is more than a match for the moonlit desert skies. This festival always attracts a dazzling array of stars for special tributes and seminars. Last year's honorees included Amy Adams, Casey Affleck, Mahershala Ali, Annette Benning, Andrew Garfield, Tom Hanks, Nicole Kidman, Ruth Negga, and Natalie Portman.

This year the Festival will again present the best in cinema from around the world. Among the over 200 films shown during the Festival (January 4-15) will be the popular Oscar Buzz series, including most of the top Oscar contenders for best foreign language film. Also enjoy the Talking Pictures Seminars, featuring in-depth conversations with visiting stars and filmmakers, as well as gala screenings and parties.

Our program starts on Thursday evening (Jan 4) with the Opening Night Film & Party and "officially" ends on Monday morning (Jan 8) after breakfast. However, your Silver A Pass – giving you entrée to films all day long – is valid through Tuesday. Stay later on Monday to enjoy more films, or even stay an extra night and enjoy films all day on Tuesday!
